Program Overview

Spanning the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba, Canada's Prairie Grasslands are among the world's most endangered ecosystems. To date, over 80% of Canada's native grasslands have been lost to conversion and land use change, leaving only remnants of this vast and complex landscape to support biodiversity, sequester carbon, and provide a wide range of ecosystem services throughout the region. The Prairies are home to diverse wildlife, including many at risk and endangered species of grassland birds. They constitute some of the highest carbon stocks in the world, storing an estimated 2 to 3 billion tons of carbon in their root systems and soil, which further capture and filter water, fix nitrogen, and minimize the occurrence of flooding and drought. Beyond their ecological value, the Prairie Grasslands are an integral part of the diverse communities who live and work on the land, and play a critical role in supporting the social and cultural well-being of people across the country.

Recognizing the importance of Canada's Prairie Grasslands, the Weston Family Prairie Grasslands Initiative will protect the biodiversity of one of Canada's most ecologically valuable and threatened ecosystems. The Initiative launches its second phase on February 18, 2025, centered on securing the long-term protection of biodiversity in Canada's Prairie Grasslands through (i) stewardship, (ii) economic viability and (iii) training.

The 2025 Weston Family Prairie Grasslands Initiative is a five-year, $30M open call funding opportunity that aims to protect grasslands biodiversity by promoting the use and adoption of best stewardship practices, addressing the economic drivers affecting land conversion, and delivering practical and impactful knowledge, tools and resources to support grass-based stewards in the long-term. This Initiative builds upon the first phase of the program, originally launched in 2020, by applying learnings and new perspectives gained in the first five years to identify and foster projects with the capacity to extend beyond the current, five-year period (2025-2030). Projects demonstrating the ability to grow and scale at the end of the five-year program will be considered for additional and increased funding beyond 2030.

Strategic Approach

- The 2025 Weston Family Prairie Grasslands Initiative prioritizes scalable, systems-based, collaborative projects that demonstrate capacity for measurable (quantitative and qualitative) impact on grassland biodiversity at a landscape level.
- Projects demonstrating the ability to deliver scalable, lasting impact toward protecting the biodiversity of grasslands will be considered for continued funding beyond 2030.

Successful projects will exhibit the following four principles:

Scalability

Projects have the capacity or potential to grow and expand toward delivering impact across additional jurisdictions, landscapes or end-user groups.

Systems-based approaches

Projects apply a broad, multi-faceted perspective that embraces the inherent complexity of the landscape, harnessing ecological, social and economic relationships to support long-term conservation.

Collaboration

Projects prioritize co-production, knowledge sharing, relationship building and partnership with the diverse practitioners living and working on the landscape.

Measurable impact

Projects contribute toward protecting landscape-scale biodiversity and demonstrate measurable (quantitative or qualitative) outputs and outcomes.

Program Objective

- The second phase of the Weston Family Prairie Grasslands Initiative builds upon the learnings and impacts achieved through the first phase of the program and addresses emerging needs to support the effective conservation and protection of Canada's Prairie Grasslands.
- Spanning 2025 through 2030, the program will continue to support impactful conservation approaches, including stewardship and training, while applying additional focus toward enhancing the economic viability of grass-based systems.

To be eligible, projects must utilize one or more of the following three conservation approaches:

(1) Stewardship

Stewardship projects include those that promote the increased use and adoption of best stewardship practices to protect the biodiversity and ecological function of grasslands.

Examples: Rotational grazing, prescribed fire, wildlife friendly fencing and water development.

(2) Economic Viability

Economic Viability projects include those that address the economic drivers affecting land use change to reduce conversion and protect the ecological integrity of grass-based systems.

Examples: Market based incentives and insurance, and preferred lending programs.

(3) Training

Training projects include those that deliver evidence-based knowledge, tools, and resources to support ecologically based land management.

Examples: Peer-to-peer training, practical workshops, and on-the-ground demonstrations.

Geographic Scope

- All projects must be implemented in grassland dominated habitats within the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and/or Manitoba, as outlined in Figure 1. Projects operating outside this region will not be considered for funding at this time.

Figure 1. Geographic region designated as 'Prairie Grasslands' for the purposes of the Weston Family Prairie Grasslands Initiative. Note that projects operating outside this region will not be considered for funding at this time.

Targeted Outcomes

- Projects must deliver practical and measurable outputs (quantitative and qualitative) that have meaningful and long-lasting impact on biodiversity.
- Impact should clearly contribute towards enhancing and protecting biodiversity in the region designated as Prairie Grasslands.
- Project outcomes must align with the identified program principles and conservation approaches (see Program Objective).

Application Process

The Foundation will utilize a two-phased approach to build programming in the grasslands:

Step (1): Letters of Intent

Deadline: Tuesday April 1, 2025, at 3pm ET

- The Foundation will accept Letters of Intent (LOIs) between Tuesday February 18 and Tuesday April 1, 2025.

- LOIs must use the template provided on the Weston Family Foundation website and should be submitted as a single PDF document via email to the Conservation Program Team \(conservation@westonfoundation.ca\) no later than Tuesday April 1 at 3pm ET.

NOTE: All applicants will receive an email from conservation@westonfoundation.ca, confirming receipt of their LOI. If you do not receive confirmation within 2-3 business days, please contact the program team to ensure that your application has been received.

- The lead applicant may submit up to one LOI on behalf of their organization, but may be listed as a collaborator on other LOIs.
- All applicants are strongly encouraged to seek collaboration within and outside their organizations to ensure projects are inherently systems-based and relevant to the range of practitioners operating in the Prairies.

Step (2): Proposals

Tentative deadline: Monday June 30, 2025, at 3pm ET *

- All LOIs will be reviewed and evaluated, after which select applicants will be invited to submit full proposals (Spring 2025) for adjudication by the Foundation's independent panel of external expert reviewers (Summer 2025).

Tentative, date subject to change.*

Applicant Eligibility

- Organizations operating in the Prairie Grasslands (see Figure 1 on Geographical Scope), with the knowledge, experience and capacity to support the identified program goals and objectives are eligible to apply.
- Recognizing that Indigenous peoples are important stewards of Canada's diverse ecosystems, the Foundation also welcomes projects that are Indigenous-led or Indigenous-partnered.
- A qualified donee, in accordance with the Canada Revenue Agency and Income Tax Act. Other non-eligible organizations required for the project may be listed as collaborators on the project.
- Organizations that meet all program criteria but are not a qualified donees are asked to contact the Foundation prior to submitting an application.

Applicant Support

- The Foundation will be offering two, one-hour, online information sessions during which prospective applicants can learn more about the program. Both webinars will feature the same content, resources and information and are designed to provide multiple opportunities for prospective applicants to engage with the program team prior to the LOI deadline.
- Prospective applicants are encouraged to attend only one of the sessions. Full event details are available on the Weston Family Foundation website and social media channels.
